Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -

- (a) the invention was known or used by others in this country, or patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country, before the invention thereof by the applicant for a patent.
- 2. Claims 1-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(a) as being anticipated by Fukazawa JP 2003264616A (see electronic translation).

Regarding claim 1, Fukazawa discloses a method for taking a photograph using a mobile communication terminal having a camera (Abstract; P.0001), the method comprising the steps of:

entering a remote-control photographing mode (P.0035 - P.0036; a user chooses the remote-operation photography from a menu);

receiving a call having a caller ID (CID) (P.0011; P.0037; a user originates a call, e.g. mail, to the cellular phone with digital camera which has an associated telephone number from the terminal the call is made);

determining whether the CID of the received call corresponds to a CID stored in a memory of the terminal (P.0011; P.0016; P.0022; P.0037; the cellular phone judges if the telephone number associated with the mail, i.e. call, it was specified and stored in the cellular phone); and operating the camera to take a photograph when the CID of the received call corresponds to the stored CID (Abstract; P.0011; P.0039-0040; when the telephone number of the mail is in agreement with the specified telephone number the camera control section actuates the camera to capture an image).

Regarding claim 2, Fukazawa discloses a method as claimed in claim 1, wherein the call includes a telephone number and a message of a short message service (SMS) (P.0011; P.0016, lines 5-10; P.0038; the incoming mail, i.e. call, has an associated telephone number, note that a e-mails are well known examples of short messages).

Regarding claim 3, Fukazawa discloses a method as claimed in claim 2, wherein a remote-control setting screen for inputting telephone numbers assigned to remote-control the camera is displayed upon entering the remote-control photographing mode (P.0036; after the user chooses the remote-operation photography the user chooses or specifies the telephone number which will trigger the remote operation of the camera).

Regarding claim 4, Fukazawa discloses a method as claimed in claim 3, wherein the remote-control setting screen includes a menu for determining acceptance or rejection of a call having a non-assigned telephone number (P.0036; P.0038; the user chooses or specifies the telephone numbers that will trigger the camera of the cell phone to take a picture, incoming calls from other telephone numbers not chosen are refused or rejected).

Regarding claim 5, Fukazawa discloses a method as claimed in claim 4, wherein the SMS message is displayed on the menu for determining acceptance or rejection of the call having the non-assigned telephone number (P.0036-P.0038; the user chooses or specifies the telephone numbers that will trigger the camera of the cell phone to take a picture, incoming calls from other telephone numbers other telephone numbers not chosen are refused or rejected, note that a mail, i.e. SMS, is associated with a telephone number).

Regarding claim 6, Fukazawa discloses a method as claimed in claim 4, wherein a call-back number included in the SMS message is stored in the memory of the terminal for operating the camera to take a photograph (P.0011, lines 3-9; P.0022, lines 0022; the telephone number associated with the mail is memorized in the storage section 14 of the cell phone to release an actuation control instruction to actuate the camera).

Regarding claim 7, Fukazawa discloses a mobile communication terminal having a camera comprising (Abstract; P.0001):

a storing section for storing telephone numbers assigned to remote-control the camera (Drawing 2; P.0029, lines 3-4; P.0036; the cell phone has an storage section 14 to memorize data such as telephone numbers); and a control section for operating the camera to take a photograph when a remote-control photographing mode is selected and a telephone number of a call received in the mobile communication terminal matches the telephone number assigned to remote-control the camera (P.0022; P.0039-0040; the camera control section 12 actuates the camera to take a picture when the telephone number of the mail, i.e. call, is in agreement with an specified telephone number).

Regarding claim 8, Fukazawa discloses a mobile communication terminal as claimed in claim 7, wherein the call includes a message of a short message service (SMS) (P.0011; P.0016, lines 5-10; P.0038; note that a e-mails are well known examples of short messages).
